Problem Statement:

The problem is the inability to accurately predict plant growth stages based on dynamic environmental and management data. This leads to inefficient resource usage, suboptimal plant growth, and potentially reduced crop yields. There is a need for a system that integrates these factors and predicts growth stages to improve decision-making in farming practices.